CPR PROMPT® PROFESSIONAL TRAINING MANIKIN NOW AVAILABLE IN TAN

Tan manikins offer CPR/AED instructors a more realistic learning experience, providing customers a choice in color

CLEVELAND – March 5, 2003 – CPR Prompt’s adult/child and infant manikins are now available in tan. The new tan color not only offers a realistic learning experience, but also provides the customer with a choice in manikin color.

“Tan CPR Prompt manikin’s are for the educators who want a more realistic looking manikin,” said Bob Kaplan, CPR Prompt’s General Manager of Product Sales. CPR Prompt also offers a standard blue manikin.

Like the blue manikin, CPR Prompt’s tan manikin has several unique features:

- Proper head tilt/chin lift to open the airway
- Visible chest rise and anatomical landmarks
- Adjustable resistance to simulate adult and child CPR compressions
- An audible compression “clicker” that verifies proper technique

CPR Prompt manikins are designed to provide affordable one-student-to-one-manikin training in CPR, AED use and the Heimlich maneuver. Minimal cleaning is required when used with the single-use face shield/lung bags. CPR Prompt’s unique adhesive strip ensures the face shield stays in place during training. Treated with DURACOAT™, the manikins have a realistic skin-like finish that is tough enough to withstand repeated use of AED trainer pads. CPR Prompt customers also appreciate their manikin durability – life-like foam construction that is tough enough to withstand 10,000 classes, their portability and their high-quality performance.
